Innovative Solutions and Novel Applications

An Overview of the Research Area

Smart Islamic financial engineering refers to a set of digital or electronic activities that include the processes of designing and implementing all innovative financial tools and procedures, and offering creative solutions to financing problems, within the framework of Shari'ah guidelines. Thus, this research area is expected to provide innovative digital solutions to real-life problems and examine novel digital applications.

Award Areas

The award is presented to researchers in the following specializations:

Distinguishing Features of the Award

1

This award is the first of its kind in studies of Islamic economics and allied disciplines in the Arab region.

2

It is concerned with practical and applied aspects that promote the activities of Islamic banking and the development of the banking system locally, regionally, and globally.

3

It is the first step towards creating a robust and significant scientific system that would become an important reference for researchers globally in the field of Islamic economics, Islamic banking, and Islamic financial institutions.

4

It is a nucleus for the launch of Al-Qasimia University Journal of Islamic economics, a specialized peer reviewed journal for articles that are current and distinct in their originality. The journal has published research papers of award winners in the first and second sessions.
